John Boyd, Esq.,
President, The Canadian National League,
P.O. Drawer 1589,
Montreal.

My dear Sir:

Owing to absence from my office through illness I regret not to have answered your letter before this. I am sending you a Post Office Order for two dollars to cover membership in your League, which I hope will be successful. As I am unacquainted with its definite work I should not like to write anything endorsing it, though of course I am in sympathy with all well-directed efforts to bring together the two sections of the country.

Yours sincerely,

President.

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL LEAGUE

LA LIGUE NATIONALE CANADIENNE

Headquarters : 55 St. François Xavier St., Montreal.

The Canadian National League has been established for the promotion of racial concord and national unity, and the full development of Canadian nationhood through the cordial and fraternal cooperation of Canadians of all races and creeds. The organization will be strictly non-partisan in character with its membership open to all Canadians who believe in its objects.

One of the greatest needs in Canada to day is, undoubtedly, the promotion of racial concord and national unity both of which are so essential to the national welfare and progress. Special efforts will, therefore, be made by the Canadian National League to promote these objects so that Canadian nationhood shall rest on the only sure foundation of justice to all races and creeds. To attain these objects it will be sought to make the people of each province better known to the people of the other provinces, to have more attention paid to the teaching of Canadian history to the youth of the Dominion to arouse Canadian patriotism, to encourage Canadian literature and art, and by all possible means to develop a true Canadian national spirit.

The Canadian National League proposes to conduct an active propoganda by means of tracts, pamphlets, booklets, etc., to promote the objects it has in view. Efforts will also be made to have leading public men from each province visit the other provinces and, by means of public addresses, endeavor to create a better understanding between the various sections of the Dominion. It will also be sought to promote increased interprovincial trade and better trade relations between the Dominion and other countries and to support all efforts for international amity and good will.

The publicity propoganda will be one of the most important features of the organization's work and to assist in this part of its work contributions will be welcome.

It is the intention to make the Canadian National League, Dominion-wide in its scope, with a strong National Advisory Council comprising representatives of all sections of the Dominion.

The seal and emblemn of the Canadian National League will be a maple leaf with the bilingual inscription —" Union Is Strength — L'Union Fait La Force ".
